

EHS Outsourcing

CMI's proven reputation for quality and cost-effective EHS outsourcing services differentiates us from other EHS firms. Our experienced EHS professionals are readily available to be part of your operational team. CMI has efficiently managed the day-to-day EHS programs for hundreds of clients covering thousands of facilities internationally. Our outsourcing services fulfill or complement the EHS management function, and are offered under various alternatives to address the unique needs of our clients including:

- Full- or part-time support for a single facility or multi-site operation
- Complete and comprehensive outsourcing for regional or global operations
- Specialized support for a corporate specialty area (i.e. industrial hygiene or remediation)
- Temporary support (during transition of staff or for completion of large projects)

Reasons Companies Choose to Outsource the EHS Function

1. Better control of operating costs
2. Improved focus on the company's core business
3. Gain access to multiple specialized disciplines
4. Internal resources able to focus on primary role(s)
5. Internal EHS resources not available
6. Better results achieved during restructuring
7. EHS function is difficult to manage and integrate
8. Reduction in associated human resource costs/liabilities
9. Risk sharing (reduced risk for fines/penalties)
10. Flexibility to address long/short term need

CMI was engaged by an international chemical company with over 40 locations in 10 countries to conduct an assessment of EHS and product stewardship processes. CMI conducted a baseline assessment, identifying over three million in savings and worked closely with company management to develop and implement the strategy for incorporating EHS into daily operations across all sites.

CMI provides direct EHS management on an outsourced basis to a multibillion dollar international information technology corporation with over 300 service facilities in the U.S. Services provided include OSHA/ISO compliance, safety assessments, compliance validation audits, indoor air quality and industrial hygiene support, and environmental compliance support.

CMI is the sole source provider of safety and health services to a self-insured state government with over 80,000 employees located across 2,400 sites. The goal of this assignment is to prevent and reduce the frequency, severity, and cost of work-related injuries and illnesses. CMI conducts safety program gap assessments and develops and implements policies, procedures and training.
